

Has your loved one been...

- Withdrawing from their family and friends?
- Secretive about their online activities?
- Constantly redirecting conversations to their new beliefs or ideology?
- Drastically changing their appearance or behavior according to their new belief? (e.g. tattoos, clothing, haircut, diet)
- Experiencing significant changes in mood (e.g. irritability or depression)

If you see any of these changes, call us today!

What's the appeal?

Extreme beliefs seduce impressionable young minds by the promise of:

- An accepting community (while turning them against their own family and society.)
- Freedom (while subjecting them to rigid and arbitrary rules.)
- Certainty and purpose (through a simplistic black-and-white thinking.)
- A clear and sharp sense of right and wrong (while blinding them to how their own actions affect others.)
- A thrilling adventure to fight "evil" (but doing so through harmful and unlawful means.)

If left unchecked, some extreme beliefs and behaviors may lead to severe, potentially violent outcomes for the individual, their family, and society.

Any belief that encourages extreme behavior can be an extreme belief, such as:

- White Supremacy
- Alt-Right
- Islamic Extremism
- Neo-Nazism
- Anarchism
- Antifa
- Eco-Terrorism
- Black Separatism
- Incel
- Jihadism
